Getting Started with Product Design

Designing the Word Frontend

Wordy is simply a mini blog that allows users to publish blog posts without the need for authentication or authorization.

We have outlined the project setup and we have created a very minimal UI wireframe. Now, let's create the frontend with HTML and CSS.

We will be relying heavily on the Bootstrap Framework.  If you don't have any knowledge of frontend, don't worry, this won't be something you will always have to do anyway since you will work along with frontend engineers when it comes to real world projects.

Below is the link to Bootstrap

https://getbootstrap.com/docs/4.0/getting-started/introduction/